New Community Services Offers Hope for People in Need in Langford

Victoria (Mar. 07) – A new permanent and accessible Salvation Army community services office, called Connection Point Church and Resource Centre, officially opened today, offering programs and supports to people in need in the town of Langford. Friends, partners, the public, elected officials, and staff celebrated this grand opening with a ribbon cutting ceremony, warmly welcoming them into the community.

“Connection Point will be a significant resource and asset, and spiritual influence in the communities here on the West Shore,” says Major Les Burrows. “It’s important that people in need know we are here for them.”

The Salvation Army is a large contributor and stakeholder to Langford and surrounding areas, assisting the fast-growing community by providing practical help and spiritual support in every area of service.

We want to thank the community for their ongoing support, The Salvation Army in British Columbia is committed to providing food, clothing and shelter to our community’s most vulnerable while helping others escape violence and addiction.
